HANDSOME FLOATS FEATURE OF BIG PAGEANT

Festivities of the Day Begin With a Ball Game and End With High Diving.

MORE than 35,000 people witnessed the festivities attendant upon the spectacular and triumphant landing of Christopher Columbus in the yacht harbor at the exposition grounds yesterday afternoon. In attendance, picturesque setting, gorgeousness of floats, diversity of specialties and genuine enthusiasm it was completely successful.

Probably no more advantageous spot on the water front could have been selected for such a spectacular display. The rectangular frontage of the yacht harbor afforded exceptional viewpoints for the thousands of spectators, and impressed upon all what a desirable place it will be for the aquatic sports planned for the exposition.

The actual landing of Columbus, spectacular as it was, was but an incident in the long and varied programme of the day.

BALL GAME ON THE ZONE.

The festivities began at 10 o'clock with a ball game on the Zone between the employes of the City Auditor's office and the fans in the office of the City Tax Collector. The first ball was pitched by Mrs. Berthold Lazarus, Auditor Boyle's mien won by a score of 14 to 11. Then followed an exhibition drill by the firemen stationed in the exposition grounds.

By that hour thousands of people had entered the exposition grounds and were congregating at points of vantage along the water front and around the yacht basin. While the water parade was forming scores of boats of the local yacht clubs took advantage of the breeze to sail back and forth across the waters from Alcatraz island to Fort Winfield Scott. From across the bay suddenly appeared the U. S. S. Marblehead, which added to the animated scene by firing a salute that was received with repeated cheers from the thousands on shore.

Then came from up the harbor the scores of fishermen's boats, floats and other gayly decorated craft constituting the vanguard and escort to the replica historic vessels of the discoverer of America. Awaiting on the pier for Columbus were fully one hundred Indians to welcome the navigator.

AQUATIC SPORTS.

After having been presented with the key of the exposition, a replica of the exposition seal and a loving cup, Columbus, accompanied by Governor Johnson and a deputation of civic and exposition officials, boarded the police patrol boat and visited the various war craft standing off the yacht harbor.

During the absence of Columbus the programme of water sports was carried out. The harbor was crowded with artistically and beautifully decorated boats of every description, while out in the bay all kinds of craft, from the Marblehead to sculls, added to the animation of the scene.

In the outer harbor there were boat races, while in the yacht basin there were exhibitions of all kinds of water sports, including swimming matches, high diving and frolicking by members of yacht clubs who took an active part in the festivities.

Cup trophies were awarded as follows:

Cutter race (U. S. Navy boats), crew from cruiser San Diego.

Best decorated fishing boat, the one that headed the second division.

Most artistically decorated boat, Robinson Crusoe.

Best decorated float, Olympic Athletic Club.

Best decorated motor boat, Mazzini Circle, Order of Foresters.

Best decorated rowboat, Dolphin Boat Club.

Best stunt, Otto Wallisch of the Olympic Athletic Club.

Best special feature, Order of Red Men, wire impersonated Indians and received Columbus.

Best decorated float, Knights of Columbus, who had a reproduction of the Mission Dolores.

Alexander Pape of the Dolphin Rowing Club was given a cup for his boat, "Fair Baby, 1915," with a stuffed work on the bow.

A cup was also given the crew of the fire boat for its exhibition.

Auditor Boyle was presented with a cup for winning the ball game.

Awards for the water sports within the yacht harbor are to be made later. Cups and awards can be secured by calling at the office of the Recreation society.

The Knights of Columbus will observe Columbus day formally this evening at their auditorium on Golden Gate avenue. A reception and ball will be given under the management of St. Francis Assembly of the Fourth Degree. Governor Johnson and Mayor James Rolph Jr. have been invited to attend. The auditorium has been decorated with potted plants and American flags.

FALLS DEAD ON BEACH.

Charles Peterson, 67, who has lived for many years at 826 Ennis avenue, dropped dead on the beach yesterday afternoon, after being awakened from a nap on the sands by a wave dashing over him. He walked about fifty yards inland before he fell. He was dead when O. Lallet of 503 Sixth avenue, who had been watching him, should be a very interesting one.

Warner Sherwood won easily from H. C. Jenkins, who did well to qualify with the first fighters, and he will have his hands full against Frank Garby today. Clinton La Montagne had a very respectable medal score for a loser, as his card aggregated 74 in his match with Vincent Whitney.

LOESER HAS ODD EXPERIENCE.

R. M. Loeser is only a sixth flighter, but he had an experience that rarely crosses the track of golfers. He drove out of bounds going to the twelfth, but the ball struck the radiator of a motor on the Junipero Serra boulevard and bounded back into the fairway. Then he made his stance at what he supposed was his own ball, and proceeded to send it out of bounds. Another player from an entirely different match told him that it was his ball, and Loeser, finding his own, took another shot, which was the first good one he made, and won the hole.

Lestock Gregory says that he is going to change his style. He had dropped into the lowly fifth flight—please remember that he was a "tiger-up" at Del Monte—and was defeated in this aforesaid lowly flight by a margin of eight up and six to play. His card looked like a cricket score. Louis Welch has the habit of carrying his matches to the extra hole route before offering congratulations. He did this again yesterday, but the feeling was entirely different, because he was this time the recipient of those congratulations. How did Sam Hopkins manage to drop into the tenth flight? It is quite on the cards for him to play against Max Rothschild in the semi-finals. This should attract a gallery.

The committee announces that the Consolation handicap will be played next Saturday afternoon for all those who turned in a qualifying score and are dismissed from the competition previous to the final stage of any flight. New handicaps will be arranged for this special event. The summary and schedule for today follow:

Robin Hayne Wins Handily From Heinrich Schmidt by Score of 4 to 3

Jack Neville Wins Out in an Exciting Game With Jack Bertholf.

By "BOBS."

HEINRICH SCHMIDT paid a brief visit to Ingleside. He won the honors of the qualifying round, then met Robin Hayne yesterday—a new Robin Hayne, who had something more than a semblance of knowledge of how to putt—and Schmidt's interest in the tournament is identical with that of the gallery. It looked like Hayne's match from the start, as he won the first three holes—thanks to Schmidt's persistent topping of his tee shots—although the fact that the Burlingame man was playing brilliant golf must not be lost sight of. From that time on Hayne was never really in danger. No one would dare to suggest that any player on the Pacific Coast could concede him four holes and start the match at the sixth tee—yet he was four up, and it was a case of give and take until the match was finally decided on the fifteenth green.

As stated previously, Hayne showed vast improvement on the greens, and it was evident that he has spent considerable time of late with his putter, as the stroke betrayed much more confidence than of yore, and once on the green he had a nasty habit of laying the ball in deadly proximity to the hole. True, he missed one or two short putts, but all golfers, even in the midst of their most brilliant putting streaks, slip once in a while.

Schmidt had several chances to make the game more exciting in the homeward journey, but he fell down twice when the winning of a hole was in sight and Hayne stole one hole from him after a visit to a sand trap.

J. O. TOBIN PLAYS WELL.

J. O. Tobin is admittedly an improved golfer, but no odds (not even 1000 to 1) could be reasonably accepted on his chances against Harry Davis, the California champion. It was his fate to draw the Apollo of California golf in the first round, and it was no disgrace to lose by a margin of 7 and 6, as Davis was hitting it out at a seventy gait.

George Garritt plays Frank Garby on the Burlingame links in friendly matches from time to time, but does not expect to hold this scratch player in an important tournament, and the previous wide margin tells the tale, though not all of it. Garby was going well, while Garritt found everything on the course, even the sand boxes.

The closest match of the first flight was that between Jack Neville and Jack Bertholf, as it went to the nineteenth hole for congratulations. Neville never seemed able to shake off the attentions of his clubmate, who was two down part of the time—never more—crept up to him at the fifteenth and won the sixteenth. This was a serious situation for Neville, one down with two to go. Here Bertholf made a bad tee shot, his ball landing in the bunker, and Neville won the hole in three. Neville had a good drive for the last tee, but Bertholf drove out of bounds and it looked all over, but the Northwest champion prolonged the agony by missing one of those eighteen-inch putts that could comfortably be kicked in—only a really good golfer could miss them.

NEVILLE FINALLY WINS.

Then they went to the extra hole and Bertholf was in the bunker with his second, but Recovery is his middle name, and he laid his third within eight feet of the pin. Neville's like shot was only a few inches nearer the cup, but he holed out, while Bertholf made a weak attempt and forfeited his chance of victory.

Cyril Tobin paid off an old score yesterday. He met E. K. Johnston of San Jose, who had on several occasions crushed his hope of winning titles, but the revenge, when it came, was really worth while, as there was no room for argument at the finish. It was six up and five to play. Johnston has a happy faculty of playing his best game against the "higher-ups," with the notable exception of Jack Neville, so that it was particularly gratifying to Tobin to win by such a wide margin. Vincent Whitney seems to have regained some of the form that carried him to Coast title honors several years ago and his match with Frank Kales, who had a fright from C. R. Parker yesterday,

Four Bridal Couples at Palace Same Day

Try to Appear Long Time Married, but Could Not Deceive Bellboys.

At one time yesterday four bridal couples were at the Palace Hotel, all trying to appear long married, but failing to escape the penetration of the many-buttoned bell boys. First there were three couples a wedding, and then there were four.

At a quiet ceremony Miss Tessie Goodman, daughter of A. Goodman, became the bride of Arthur J. Manasse, manager at Madera for a San Francisco commercial house. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Martin A. Meyer.

The other couples registered at the Palace were George W. Davis and his bride, who was Miss Hazel Meyer; Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Kutner and Joseph J. Kushner and Mrs. Kushner, who was Miss Lesh Cohn.

100,000 PERSONS SEE APPLE SHOW

Fifth Affair of Kind Ended After Scoring Success Unusually Great.

The fifth California Apple Show came to an end last night after establishing the record of showing the exhibits to more than 100,000 persons, having more than cleared all expenses and having given to thousands of visitors a more comprehensive idea of what California can do in the way of producing apples.

All day yesterday the big tent at Eighth and Market streets was filled with visitors, and in the evening it was packed to its capacity. Before the closing hour every box of apples shown had been purchased for delivery today at prices befitting the unusual excellence of the fruit. Many stores secured entire exhibits, but individual purchasers of one or more boxes of apples were in evidence by the hundred.

A special band concert was given last evening.
