

EXPLOSION AT WORTH

Stable at Race Track Target of "Bomb Thrower," but Damage Is Small.

TURF WAR FORESHADOWED

Horsemen Fear "Reign of Terror" Among Rivals—Outlaw Rule to Go.

The first audible manifestations of a race track war were sounded early yesterday morning when two packages of explosives were tossed into a stable at the Worth track. The explosion was greater than the damage, but hurried around town figures the act as a forerunner of something more desperate later on. Although the officials of the Worth track started an investigation yesterday, nothing had been learned up to last night as to the identity of the perpetrator of the crime.

The explosives were thrown into the stables shortly after midnight yesterday, according to Manager J. E. Wagner of the track. The southwest corner of the grounds was selected for the attack.

It would be possible to find out the names of the men who were in the stables at the time of the explosion, but it is not known if the police will attempt to do so. The explosion was not fatal, but it was a warning shot. The explosion was not fatal, but it was a warning shot.

CUBS AND PIRATES GO

Rain Stops Baseball Game and Both Teams Leave for Pittsburgh.

LUCK IS WITH THE GIANTS

Selee Says McGraw's Men Will Have Long Lead in the Pennant Race.

Minus two of their players, Captain Chance and "Bob" Wicker, the Cubs accompanied the pirates to Pittsburgh last night, having been cheated out of a chance to make it three straight against the former champions by yesterday's rain. Evers has fully recovered from the bump he received in Saturday's game with Cincinnati and went away with the team, intending to play today. The postponed game of yesterday will be played off on either June 4 or 5.

With the championship season nearly two weeks old, players and officers of the local National League club are more certain than ever that New York is the strongest contender for the pennant and the bunch they must beat out to carry off the bundling. The Giants are much improved over last season, said Manager Selee of the Cubs. "It is better to have a team that is getting a running start at the expense of their weaker opponents than a team that is getting a running start at the expense of their stronger opponents."
