

Epileptic Fits.

The necessity for taking the right treatment for Epileptic Fits is strengthened by several facts.

First: Ineffectual treatment entails expense and serious loss of time.

Second: If the fits are not promptly cured the very medicine used aggravates the complaint, and, furthermore, it takes the right medicine longer to cure when it is found.

Third: Continued failure to find a cure makes the patient hopeless and doubtful, and he may refuse a real cure when found, believing his case incurable.

Failure to take the right medicine in the early stages is serious, but not fatal. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer will cure even the most advanced cases but it may take longer. It has cured fits that exist from birth, cases that good doctors treated for over thirty years and gave up as incurable. Epileptics having twenty-five to thirty-five years have never had a fit after taking the first dose of Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer.

Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has cured more serious cases of fits in the past sixteen years than all other treatment. That there are incurable cases may be true, but we know of no method by which they can be pointed out, because the worst cases that have come to our notice have been cured permanently by the Wheeler method. For this reason no case should be considered hopeless.
