IOWAN NABS MAN
WHO SOLD STATUE

Waits Two Weeks in Chicago
Railway Station for Seller of Logan Monument

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The vigil of Father Kingbird, an Iowa farmer, who for weeks has watched in the vicinity of the Illinois Central station for the return of the man who sold him the Logan Monument in Lincoln Park was rewarded. Kingbird says the person he accuses of swindling him out of the building and powdering it with lime is a Negro. The prisoner was identified as William Woodward.

The lawyer paid $60 for the huge monument, which the General was discussing with a gang of workmen the best way to take it down when a park policeman came on the scene and took the man to Pennsylvania for a few days' stay. On his return here fourteen days ago he asserted he would search until he found the confidence man.

SEEDY LOOKING MAN
BUYS $25,000 BONDS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—Trailing a heavy, soiled canvas sack, a seedy-looking individual, whose name is unknown, was seen by County Treasurer McDougald's office and asked if the bonds recently voted to extend San Francisco's municipal railway system had been sold. A thoughtful clerk waited on the stranger. "Yep," said the clerk, sizing up his questioner. "How much do you want, and to whom?"

The man slammed his sack down on the table. Then he began stacking up $20 gold pieces.

"I'm a young fellow," he said, "that I want about $25,000 worth, but I won't do business with you."

Treasurer McDougald closed the deal within fifteen minutes.

POLICEMAN OUTRAGED
BY CUPID: APOLOGIZES

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Cupid was at the speed limit and won from a motorcycle police officer.

Wharton Poor, an attorney, was late starting for work at Island City when he found Miss Phoebe Morris, a young society woman of Flushing, to get a marriage license, so he speeded his car at forty-five miles an hour.

Through Flushing and to the city clerk's office Poor's automobile was chased by Motorcycle Policeman Morris, who was just as the couple entered the clerk's office.

The policeman arrested the chauffeur but apologized for doing it.

SAVES MOTHER AT FIRE
BY BLOWING TOY HORN

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Harold Turner, 5 years old, of Roselle, N. J., roused his mother when she was in peril of being burned to death by blowing a toy horn as loudly as he could.

Mrs. Turner's room was ablaze and other members tried by the boy had failed to awaken her. When she awoke and saw the flames she sent little Harold in her arms and fled from the house in her night clothes.
