IF THIS THING KEEPS UP CUPID DUGDALE WILL WASTE AWAY TO NOTHING

IT'S CERTAINLY VERY WEIRD HOW EQUINES ACT IN NINTH FRAME

Mays Starts Rally on Silver Smith and Mahoney Cleans Up for Winning Runs.

When Patrick Mays' right arm gets weak and refuses to respond to liberal applications of wine grapes, Pat can do the "Mona McGeehan" and continue to earn his daily bread by tossing or in the pitcher. Patrick has been running the arena of the ball game frequently these days, and when the ninth inning came around yesterday and the count was one tally all, Manager Mitt shoved Pat at the slants and Pat responded. Casey was next to swing on Smith's curves.

Patrick cut loose at one and it rolled out to short, where Frankenstein was playing the conservative role. Put to some first of the lower extremities and easily beat the ball to the sack by a couple of ells. Todd sacrificed and Smith was so flustered by the time Mays got to third Bancroft, Gulgni found off a few and then stroked one over first and scored. Mays rounded third and drew up onto his feet off the ball.

Catcher Leaves Ball.

In the counting Eastwood was half way between second and third, when Altman, to whom the ball had been forwarded, made a recital move to Wolfe and Davis got safely back to the sack alone. Altman knew a trick and the old fooling ball. Melcher faced Geigel at second and fanned. Altman, playing the heavy role of infield decapitator, waited until Melcher was out of the way, Bancroft and Melcher were home. Yaks pedaled their way over the home way over.

Harry Heilman qualified for the Faber-O'Rourke class in the ninth by pulling the "Chesterfield" on Mc Carty at first with one down. All Carty could do Gaigel, sniffed from right field to third, and the next guess was Heilman home.

Wolfe's double, Fitzgerald's beaten out bunt and Ness' single to right gave the Indians the first run in the third. Mahaffey got to second on Graney's ball a couple of out. Fitzgerald's walk and a double steal put Ness over either to the fifth. Lynch's double to the left field fence and Wolfe's single to center counted the third run for the Islanders.

Wagner Sprains Ankle.

Gaigel scored Portland first run on a error by Bancroft and Mays' single to center's fly over Melcher. Until the seventh nothing but errors were added to the two hits on counts. With two out in the seventh Mahaffey got a life on Gaigel's gentlemen hit a grounder to Wolfe, who fumbled it to Wagner. The latter in trying for the double pegged the ball to first baseman Heilman, turned his ankle and Heilman dropped the ball. Before Wagner said to be carried from the field and Heilman could get the ball to short, while Wolfe started to second. Fitzgerald caught a fly ball to the left of Cavaliam, who was pitching for Cottrell, and the runaway was stopped.

Davy Bancroft was the particular star in the fielding line, handling 15 chances faultlessly. Fitzgerald was also credited in the sixth inning he fielded the ball to Melcher in time to get the man. In the fifth inning he tossed Wolfe out when the latter was trying to get on the bottom of Fitzgerald at third. When the infielder was in the act of throwing on a double steal with Altman. It was the latter who was thrown handled by an infielder since Mays worked and finished it at second base for Pat Heilman on the home end of the ball.
