Pacific Association Swimming Championships Are Ready for Staging

LOCAL MERMEN ARE IN FINE FETTLE FOR EVENT

Olympic Club Likely to Capture First Honors in the Exposition Meet.

By RAYMOND S. BARTLETT.

Local mermen are looking forward with keen interest to the first important exposition swimming event, the Pacific Association championships, scheduled for enactment on the evening of July 2d. While the competition will serve somewhat as a warm-up for the later Amateur Athletic Union and P. P. I. E. championships, still a peculiar attractiveness attaches to the event which carries with it the title of the local A. A. U. Association. Already entries have been accepted which insures a crack field for the evening of the 2d, and when the names of all competitors are announced tomorrow it is anticipated that the cream of local surf splashing talent will be included.

Judging from the strength of the team announced, the Olympic Club should experience little difficulty in obtaining first honors in the July meet. Sid Cavill, swimming instructor of the Post-street institution, has been engaged in extensive coaching for the past month with men whom he expects will secure a majority of the points. The Winged O will present a remarkable trio in the shorter distances, with Bab Small, Ernie Smith and H. Robertson on scratch. Smith has been improving in his work very rapidly during the past month, and looks to be one of the best performers developed during past years in this part of the country. He will be pressed for honors by Bab Small, who is riding the waves in a manner that is most impressive. Small and Smith will start in both the 50 and 100 yard dashes. The duo will be augmented by H. Robertson, a new star, who has been timed under 26 seconds on numerous occasions in the 50-yard dash.

Lincoln Johnson will represent the Olympians in the furlong and 500-yard races. Johnson is swimming in easy fashion, and through consistent training has nearly reached the height of form in his event. H. Jensen is expected to start for the Olympians in the back stroke, while Billy Williams, formerly of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, will be the mainstay in the diving events. Very recently Williams took second place to Cliff Bowes, the southern diving champion, and is reputed to be a star of the very first variety. In addition to these men, Bobby Beck, George Bond and Murray Barton are expected to start.

Other organizations are expected to enter strong swimmers in the coming championship and several unattached stars have signified their intentions of trying conclusions with the local talent. Austin Mosher of Santa Cruz, who very recently gave Bab Small a tough time of it in the 50-yard dash, has placed his entry in the hands of the local committee and will attempt once more to wrest the honors from the Olympic flyer.

Jim Corbett Tells Why He Wants Coffey for Cowler

Thinks That Is the Quickest Way to Land Match With Willard.

By HARRY B. SMITH.

When James J. Corbett returns East with Tom Cowler, which he will do shortly, leaving on Sunday, his first point will be to sign his man up for a match against Jim Coffey, if that is possible. Corbett, naturally enough, is working along with a Willard bout as his objective. Just at present, however, he realizes there is more to be gained in taking on Coffey.

The Irishman stands out as the one chap who figures to be given a fight with Willard, and, therefore, he's the one to beat.

"Reich came close to knocking out Coffey," explained Corbett, last night, "and there is more to be gained in a fight with Coffey than by going after some of the other fellows. Honestly, Cowler has improved to such an extent that people who saw him in his exhibition at the Olympic Club would hardly recognize him.

"Now, I want to explain a little about his Australian matches. Perhaps you noticed that in one of the papers, at least, his showing was criticized. That is not hard to explain. There are two papers in Sydney that give a good deal of space to boxing. The boxing sports are anything but friendly, and when one says a good word for you, the other is bound to knock. That's just what happened.

"When Cowler was lined up for his first match against Les O'Donnell, they told me the latter was a clever boy. For that reason, I advised Tom not to try to score a knockout, but to take things easily. The match had to be stopped in the sixth round, and awarded to Cowler. After that they said that Cowler could box, but that he couldn't punch. A little later he demonstrated, I think, that he could punch as well as box.

"I had him working on a punching bag that was constructed after my own ideas. It was a football padded around with sawdust, and I told him to hit that bag as hard as ever he could. It helped him out a lot."

The funny thing about a Cowler-Coffey match is the fact that Jim Coffey's people, as well as those of Corbett, came from the same part of Ireland, and there has been more than the ordinary friendship between the pair in consequence. At the time Coffey was sent against Battling Levinsky, in Madison Square Garden, Corbett advised the heavy-weight and predicted that some day he would be champion of the world.

Now the shoe is on the other foot, and Corbett is attempting through his protege, to rob Coffey of even a chance at the title, for should Cowler beat the New Yorker, he wouldn't figure any longer as an opponent for the world's champion.

Willie Ritchie gave a private rehearsal yesterday afternoon of his picture film, "The Knockout of Dan Dolan," in which the American lightweight champion played the title role. Ritchie's brother, Lew, played the opponent in the prize fight scene, in which he has to suffer a knockout at the hands of Dan Dolan (Willie Ritchie).

The display was more for the moving-picture people than from a sporting standpoint, as Ritchie has the California State rights, and is anxious to dispose of his holdings. The picture was taken in New York, and was written around the San Francisco lightweight.

FIRST PACKARD IS TO BE SEEN IN THIS CITY

Veteran Model Is Sent Here From Detroit for Exhibition; Notes.

By LEON J. PINKSON.

The first Packard motor car ever built arrived in San Francisco yesterday. It was shipped to Cuyler Lee, the Northern California Packard distributer, from the Detroit factory, and is to be one of the features of the Packard display in the Transportation Palace at the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

This relic of the early days of motor-car construction was built in Warren, O., in 1899, and it takes but a glance at this echo of the past and a look at the present-day Packard to show the wonderful development in motor-car construction within a period of sixteen years.

The old Packard has been on display at the company's headquarters in Detroit for several years, and when President Henry B. Joy arrived at the exposition last Friday, after his transcontinental trip, and got a clear idea of its magnitude, and especially of the splendid automobile display in the Transportation Palace, he telegraphed the factory to express the old car to San Francisco and to see that it was properly exhibited for the remainder of the show. Its arrival here yesterday showed that no time was lost [illegible]

STANFORD EIGHT ROUNDING INTO THE BEST SHAPE

Cardinals Take Practice Spins and Report Well—Rogers Takes New Position at No. 5 Seat.

Special Dispatch to The Chronicle.

POUGHKEEPSIE (N. Y.), June 24.—There was decided slowing down today in work of various crews assembled here for the twenty-first annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, but Stanford rowed up the river and then hit down the course at a long stroke of twenty-eight. It was a quasi-time trial, but there was no announcement of the time consumed in covering the course.

Coach Guerena spent a lot of time coaching his new man, Rogers, at No. 5. This afternoon Guerena went down stream and worked on several racing starts. He returned after having covered seven miles and stopped the big Coast crew at the finish line. It raced for a half-mile against a stiff breeze and showed surprising speed for such giants. The time was 2:27.

Orme, No. 6, since the Coast champions left San Francisco, has lost nine pounds. He weighed 190 and now is down to 181. He said the loss was due to nothing but the fact that he had to break training for the five days consumed in traveling across the continent. He felt confident that he would be back to weight again by Monday. Guerena said his crew is just hitting its stride and regretted that there was such a short time left. In another week, he said, his crew would make them all take notice.

SAYS CHICAGO STUDENTS "KID THEMSELVES ALONG"

CHICAGO, June 24.—The University of Chicago student body is "going the limit in kidding itself along."

So declared Arthur O. Hanish of Waupun, Wis., speaking before the members of the sophomore class of the university, who took the title of associate at the final junior chapel exercise for the year today in Mandel Hall. Among those present were the members of the two sophomore societies, Skull and Crescent and Score Club.

Hanish declared that the students are missing the point of university life, and challenged the value of the sophomore societies. He himself is a member of the Score Club. He declared the clubs were attempts to imitate conditions of a century ago in Eastern institutions.

"That undergraduates should pick a certain number of their fellows as the best men in school seems ridiculous in the first place," continued the speaker, "but when this picked body has for its function a task such as giving a certain number of dances a year or decorating the stands for football games, it seems that the student body has gone the limit—to use its own phrase—in kidding itself along."

Score Club gives a series of dances each year. Skull and Crescent declares in its constitution that its purpose is to decorate the stands for football games.

Woman on Ambulance Has a Very Busy Day

NEW YORK, June 24.—Dr. Anna Pjomsland, the only woman ambulance surgeon at Bellevue Hospital, volunteered to "ride the bus" for one of the men doctors who wanted a day off. She thought it would be an easy day. Between 9:30 in the morning and 5:15 in the evening she had thirteen calls, ranging from injured children to plain drunks. "But I don't mind it; the day passed quickly," she said.

The United States is the greatest producer of tobacco in the world, and the greatest exporter, the greatest importer and the greatest consumer. Our production of leaf of all sorts averages somewhat more than 1,000,000,000 pounds a year, having a value to the producers of about $100,000,000.

THOUSANDS OF OSTRICHES ARE ALLOWED TO STARVE

NEW YORK, June 24.—According to Consul E. A. Wakefield, who is at Port Elizabeth, South Africa, interest in the ostrich as a revenue producer is now at the lowest possible ebb, and birds are dying by thousands from lack of food and attention.

To show how the value of these birds has fallen, Wakefield quotes from local newspapers as follows:

"Ostriches are now of such little account and value that the poundmaster has written to the Council asking permission to refuse ostriches in the pound.

"It is said that a full grown cock ostrich which had found its way to the Grahamstown pound was on being put up for public auction on the market sold for the magnificent sum of 3 pence, or 6 cents."

A Michigan cider manufacturer unloads a car of apples with a stream of water. The scheme is quick and economical.
