SCOO, THE CUB REPORTER Stable "Policing" is Hard on the Temper

The Billiard Players.
(By United Press.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Yamada, Jap billiard champion, had another chance today to make good in the 15.2 ball line billiard tourney. He was matched, this afternoon, with George Sloss. Hope and Mayer must tonight. In yesterday's match, Walker Cochrane, though outscored by Sloss, won because of Sloss's heavy handicap. Sloss defeated Mayer.

HARVARD-YALE SQUADS RESTING FOR BIG GAME

(By United Press.)
BOSTON, Nov. 19.—With all hand work over, Johnny Harvard and Bill Yale today were waiting for the dawn of tomorrow, which will bring victory to one of them.
The Crimson warriors were at this point, awaiting their match tomorrow at the Vesper Country club. The Yale lads will furnish most of their exercise today and there will be little talk, even of football.
The team that will face Yale tomorrow will be the same as that which defeated the Tigers two weeks ago with the exception of Cowart at guard in place of Taylor. This brings the Harvard line up at a strength of 15 pounds per man over the Blue Devils. Yale athletic authorities have made it plain they will protest to Harvard today, this morning all doubt as to Capt. Mahan's status. The Blue camp, it is stated, were quartered at the Woodland Park hotel, Abington, and at 10 o'clock today were to the stadium for light practice and to accustom themselves to the lights. Tom Shettle will have entire charge of the Blue throughout the day. After luncheon they will

EXPENSIVE GRASS.

Harvard Athletes Lough at the Mass. Runners.
(By United Press.)
CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 19.—Harvard athletes will be in a sorry state of mind at the moment. The report was made of pleasure to the fact when the grass grows high, the money they laugh at the report from New Haven that Captain Mahan had outscored 1800 for mowing the lawn at some Harvard camp. The report was delayed in competition with rumors that a protest might be made against the grass.
But there's that mood in it, about the grass, they chorused.

GASOLOGUE No. 1

"What do you mean—'Ignition point'?"
"I mean the temperature at which the gasoline will vaporize so that it can be exploded by a spark plug."
"Humph! Same thing as 'boiling point'?"
"Practically."
"And you say low ignition point is the real test for gasoline?"
"The only real test."
"But I've always thought it depended on gravity—the higher the gravity the better the gasoline."
"That's a motor-myth. Low gravity gasoline has more kicks in it—more heat units—and, provided the ignition point is right, it is better to use and costs less when you figure miles per gallon."
"Instead of high gravity, I'm to ask for—"
"Ask for SOCONY Motor Gasoline. It's simpler. The gravity's right, the ignition point is right, and, more than that, SOCONY Gasoline is always the same wherever you get it."

In Place of the Muff.

The very best tailored costumes are shown without a muff, but they are trimmed with long or medium sized collars of fur and deep cuffs which are cut about four inches above the end of the sleeve. The coats have large pockets of the all-fur lined with chamois. When walking on a cold day one simply puts the hands firmly in the pockets instead of carrying the usual mitts.

It is a note that is practical and very comfortable when worn when a muff is apt to be an annoyance. The very best fur mitts are making all their walking suits in this manner.
