Author, Producer and Manager Arrives From Los Angeles With Quiver Full EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK San Francisco, He Says, Will See All His Success-ful Productions

By WALTER ANTHONY

Henry Morosco arrived in his home town from the other home town, Los Angeles, yesterday morning, with a quiver full of plays, eleven in all, and all for New York, whether in a week or in two months.

His first production for the West was "Canary Cottage," which he had written with the late Alcazar, and which he had produced in Los Angeles.

But even that is not the principal reason of Morosco's visit to New York. He does come primarily to see the success of his plays and to bring forth in New York, Chicago and other places his new plays.

He will be in New York for a week, and will then return to Los Angeles. He will be in New York for a week, and will then return to Los Angeles.
